

TWO OF A KIND

Instructions for using "Two of a Kind" quiz scoring method

Set up the 12 numbered squares in three rows of four and hide one of the 12 items under each at random. As each side answers questions correctly, they choose a square and are awarded the item underneath it. If they are the first to get that item, they keep it and aim to collect the other one. If the other side already have the other one of the pair, it goes back under its square. The winning side is the first one to collect three or more pairs. This scoring method is available as the title and numbered squares with a choice of four sets of pairs. It is illustrated here using the animal pairs with the fruit, insects and transport pairs shown below.
